Description: With the specter of mass casualty incidents on the continual rise, and your likely response to an active shooter event, this course will give you skills you can use to save lives in those precious few minutes before medics can be introduced into the unsecure, immediate action area. The lifesaving concepts presented are based upon the most current and innovative techniques currently in use by the United States Military as dictated by the “Tactical Combat Casualty Care” (TC3) model as well as civilian EMS trauma guidelines as used by our current emergency response systems. This course is valid for EVERY peace officer regardless of their level of medical training.
